

The Daily Record Online
October 22, 2003

Coalition faults lack of counsel for teen offenders

By LAWRENCE HURLEY

As many as half of all juveniles appearing in Maryland's courts are waiving their right to counsel without being properly informed of the consequences, according to a report issued yesterday by an advocacy group that also calls for various improvements to the juvenile justice system in the state.